WHAT TO EXPECT IN EACH GATEWAY MATH COURSE

Math 120 (3 credits) with Math 20 (2 credits) uses ALEKS for online homework and exams. Other aspects of the course may include in-person lectures and class activities dependent on the modality and projects that vary dependent on the instructor. Students are expected to spend 9-12 hours per week of work outside the classroom.

Math 124 (3 credits) with Math 24 (2 credits) is similar to Math 126/26 but slightly less algebraically intensive and designed for students pursuing a Business degree. Students are expected to spend 12-15 hours per week of work outside the classroom.

Math 126 (3 credits) with Math 26 (3 credits) is designed for student pursing an AS transfer degree. Instructor may use WebAssign for homework. Students are expected to spend 15-20 hours per week of work outside the classroom.

WHAT TO EXPECT IN A COREQUISITE MATH COURSE

All three of these courses offer two formats: a standalone three credit format and additional 2-3 credits of corequisite support for those that require it. The corequisite format meets with an instructor twice a week with a focus on development of the specific prerequisite abilities that would be expected in the stand alone.
